

New Bedford, Feb. 24, 1891.

Dear Doct. Watson:

Is the habitat of Viburnum nudum in Abbeville 1890 correctly stated?

I had called the one growing abundantly here V. nudum + it is unlike one named by Jackson Dawson as V. cassinoides which has a larger and broader leaf + cymes more thickly & closely set. If J. D. is correct then mine is V. nudum + the habitat of the Abbeville would be in error + therefore I make the enquiry -

In regard to my pkg. of plants - sent you last November I wish to say, that I have now completed my local catalogue of plants, with the exception of those sent you, + I would like to send it to the printer in order to get it printed by the opening of spring.

Now if you can conscientiously under the circumstances and without great injustice to any one else favor me this time I would appreciate it.

I would suggest that you might run through them, marking such as you can at a glance and send to me & if by chance there should be 2 or 3 which you would like to examine with more care, to reclaim them until some time when you are less occupied.

I found Symphoricarpos fortidus to day in flower & the buds of Lindera benzoin much swollen.

Truly yours
E. W. H. Hervey
